Last Will and Testament of Oliver S. Pillsbury, deceased.

To Celestia D. Pillsbury, executrix; Adelaide E. Zimmerman, Rolin S. Zimmerman, Mrs. Matilda S. Conn, Mary Pillsbury, Dennis Pillsbury, A. B. Pillsbury, G. Sidney Pillsbury, Charles O. Cushman, and to all whom it may concern:

You are hereby notified that the alleged Will and Testament of Oliver S. Pillsbury, deceased, late of the county of Bernalillo and state of New Mexico, has been produced and read in the Probate Court of the county of Bernalillo, state of New Mexico, on the 1st day of August, 1912, and the day of the proving of said alleged Last Will and Testament was thereupon fixed for Tuesday, the 2nd day of September, A. D. 1912, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day.

Given under my hand and the seal of this court, this 2nd day of August, A. D. 1912.

A. E. WALKER,
Probate Clerk.

ORDINANCE NO. 186.

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Albuquerque:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person within the corporate limits of the City of Albuquerque to jump off or on, climb up or hang upon any railway engine, railway train or railway car, whether passenger or freight car, or whatever kind, while said engine or cars are in motion, and to use the main line, side tracks, spurs, switches for any other track upon which any railroad uses or moves its cars; and any person not being a payee passenger or employee, or an official of the railway company operating the same, and any person so offending may be arrested by any sheriff or deputy of the County of Bernalillo, or by any policeman of the City of Albuquerque, or by any depot master, or other railway employee, carrying a special permit from either the sheriff of the County of Bernalillo, or the City of Albuquerque, or by any other authority authorized under the laws of said state, to make arrests for the violation of any law of the State of New Mexico, and when so arrested he shall be fined in the sum of not less than $1.00 nor more than $10.00 for each offense.

Section 2. Any child under the age of eighteen years, who shall catch hold of any of the cars of any railway company within the City of Albuquerque, while the same are in motion, or shall ride on the steps of said cars, or hang on the rods, or along the same, the side of said cars when they are in motion, near enough to be in danger of being caught by the wheels thereof, in case such child should fall or stumble, shall, upon conviction thereof be fined in a sum of not less than one dollar or more than ten dollars; and any officer described in Section 1 of this ordinance shall have a right to arrest such offender for violation of this section of the ordinance.

Section 3. It shall be unlawful for any foot passenger, driver of automobiles, driver of teams, motorcycles, or bicycles to interfere with any gate used at any street crossing when the same are lowered or turned down while a railway train is approaching or crossing such street; and it shall also be unlawful for any foot passenger, automobiles, drivers of teams, motorcycles or bicycles, who shall violate this section of the ordinance shall,

EDUCATION IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Education in foreign countries is given special attention in a survey just issued for free distribution by the United States bureau of education, in the belief that foreign experience is particularly valuable at this time for affording light on school problems now under discussion in the United States.

In vocational training especially, the report points out, foreign experience needs to be considered; Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Norway, and other European nations have for many years been making provision for industrial and technical instruction in public schools, and their systems, while undoubtedly not adaptable as a whole to American conditions, should aid materially in solving the vocational problem in the United States.

English-speaking countries have been later in adapting education to industrial needs. Canada, like the United States, is now wrestling with the problem; a commission on industrial training has been investigating the subject for the past three years. Scotland has been unusually successful in providing continuation schools that avoid the danger of too early specialization. In Ireland municipal technical schools are transforming the city industries, just as the rural industries were transformed by the earlier agricultural movement. England herself, according to the report, "is gaining leadership among the nations by the close organization of all the agencies, social and educational, directed to the improvement of rural life."

In England the necessity for better adjustment to industrial needs has been brought home by the failure of the children to continue their education beyond the primary school. It is estimated that six out of seven English children never appear in school after reaching the age of 15.

Practically every civilized nation is considered to some extent in the bureau's report. Among special topics considered are: Health work in the schools of Great Britain; rural schools in France; education for citizenship in Germany; instruction for emigrants in Italy; Robert College in Constantinople—an American foundation; Russia's efforts for rural uplift; and the partial adoption in New South Wales of the educational program of the labor party.

ELECTRICAL NOTES.

Churches are now using electric sign advertising.

Electric ovens are coming into use in the city bakeries.

Huntington avenue, Boston, will be made a Great White Way.

Dust on electric light globes robs them of their light-giving efficiency.

The White House kitchen has every modern electrical convenience.

Electric illumination is now a feature of nearly every celebration or exposition.

It is proposed to harness the Ohio river near Louisville to generate electrical power.

A wireless system between Great Britain and Canada will be in operation next September.

Electro-magnets are being installed by treasure hunting ships to recover submerged metals.

TODAY'S NOVELLETTE.

JONES' JOKE.

I. At 10:20 a. m. on the twenty-fourth, A. D. Scipio Jones climbed into the operating chair of Dennis Silfento, D. P. D. (see footnote), and Dr. Silfento, after remarking casually "Strawberries are nice," screwed Mr. Jones' head in a vice, pried his jaws open and put some harness in to keep them open.

II. At 10:38 a. m. Sigismund Wallops, the neighborhood checker champion, strolled in with his board under his arm.

"Morning Sig," said the dentist.

"Morning, Den," said the checker.

"Are you ripe for a little game?"

"The two men sat down at the reading table in the waiting room and were soon jumping each other's men hither and yon.

Meanwhile Scipio Jones reclined in the operating chair, trusted for business.

III. At 11:54 the dentist and the checker were still at it. Each had a king.

Meanwhile Scipio Jones reclined in the operating chair, trusted for business.

IV. At 11:53 Scipio Jones dived from the nearest window, dragging the operating chair with him.

THE END.

(Footnote: Doctor Painless Dentistry.)

So, Therefore, They Married.

They were engaged. Perhaps he repented; perhaps he did it only for fun.

"My darling Ethel, what would you say if I were to tell you that I cannot marry you?"

"I would say, my dearest love, that I have a big brother who would make it warm for you, and that I have some of the sweetest little billets-doux that would make it expensive for you, George, dear."

"But, you know, I haven't said it," he knew you haven't said it.

"So, we'd better get married, hadn't we?"

"I think so, my precious."—Tit-Bits.

The bard was melancholy—he sat on the ocean's strand.

"Would that I could describe the sea," he sighed and waved his hand.

"Would that I could describe the hue With soul and truth and skill.

The way some other fellows do And dice—dark, dark it will!

Would that I could, in throbbing slaves Describe its mystery—

The sea that sleeps—the sea that raves!

These are the themes for me. Would that—a wave broke over him! He, so to speak, unlibed it!

It fell him flat upon the strand, It bumped his head to beat the band, It ebbed—he rose, checkful of sand, Took one look at the ocean and Described it.
